December 2023

Project Overview

Griffiths were appointed to deliver the Penrhos Road Active Travel Schemein October 2023, starting work in November. Completion is scheduled in Spring 2024. The project is funded by Transport for Wales (TfW) to create an Active Travel Path from Ysbyty Gwynedd Bangor Station, which consists of four phases; Griffiths will build the first phase, creating a new path approximately 850 metres long between Coed y Maes junction to Coed Mawr junction. We are:

- Narrowing the road
- Creating the Active Travel Path
- Installing new kerbs, tactile crossings and controlled crossings (Zebra and Pelican)
- Installing new signs and speed reminder signs which are radar activated

Project Progress/Upcoming work

Since starting the Project we've completed the first two sections by installing 165 metres (around 180 yards) of the new path, including kerbs and gullies. This represents 20% of the project completed to date, and resurfacing these two sections following the Christmas break during the week commencing Monday 8th January 2024, and moving on to the next section.

We'd like to thank everyone for their patience and understanding as we deliver this project. The work area is now closed over the Christmas break and the project will progress along Penrhos Road when we return to work on Monday 8th January. We'll continue to ensure that the traffic lights are controlled by staff during the busiest periods of the day, and do our best to minimise disruption and keep the traffic flowing as best we can.

Merry Christmas a Happy New Year from the Griffiths team!
